Gary's client-first philosophy has been the driving force for the firm since its inception in 1978. As the founding principal, Gary has established a professional reputation for producing creative and coherent design solutions that respond to the clients program, budget requirements and schedule.

Quality control is a key component to his practice and is applied to all phases of a project from schematic design through construction administration. Gary possesses an adept business sense that has brought stability to the firm through economic cycles in the real estate development market.

All projects at the firm are a collaboration, and Gary works closely with all team members, providing direction and oversight throughout the work progress. He believes the team approach is essential to a successful project and his broad experience in parks and recreation, school site planning, sports facilities, residential design and commercial office complexes guides the diverse projects within the firm.

Gary's recent projects include:

- First Congregational Church - Winchester, MA
- Lexington Elementary Schools Feasibility Study
- Leap School - Bedford, MA
- Lexington Hills Residential Development
- Wisteria Lane Subdivision - Lexington, MA
- Private Residences in Lexington, Wellesley, Cambridge, and Mansfield
